Children's Home to Assume Operation of Safe Place in West Palm Beach

Enterprise, FL – The Florida United Methodist Children's Home operates an emergency intake shelter on their Enterprise campus as part of the continuum of care provided for children who are the victim of abuse, abandonment, or neglect. ChildNet, a foster care lead agency operating in Palm Beach and Broward Counties, recently asked the Children's Home to assume the operations and management of their emergency intake program called Safe Place. This is due in part because of the experience and expertise in the operation of an emergency shelter, the existing relationship the Children's Home has with ChildNet as well as being a member of Florida Coalition for Children, and the fact that the Children's Home already provides foster care services in those counties.

Last year, ChildNet served approximately 3,500 children in Palm Beach and Broward Counties who came from an environment of abuse, abandonment, or neglect. The number of children in this area and across the state is only expected to grow, and that's why the Children's Home is expanding services in this area. This eight-bed shelter was established to provide meals, clothing, and short term care while a child transitions to a foster home or other appropriate placement. Beginning September 1, the Children's Home will assume the day-to-day operation of Safe Place as we expand our ability to care for youth in South Florida.

According to Diahann Suchan, Vice President of Residential Clinical Services at the Children's Home, "Assuming the operation of Safe Place is a natural expansion of our current skills and resources. In conjunction with our other services, including Foster Care, we expect to be able to provide care for more children than before and help them find the loving home they need."
